

ArtsBridge is an arts education and outreach program of the Jordan Schnitzer Museum of Art, a satellite program for ArtsBridge America.

ArtsBridge provides stipends to qualified University of Oregon students, graduate and undergraduate, to conduct arts workshops in visual art, dance, drama and music to the Lane County community.

ArtsBridge scholars go into county K-12 schools to teach classes with a supervising teacher or lead after-school clubs. ArtsBridge scholars also work with pediatric patients and non-profit youth organizations.

THE ARTS

Reinforce learning by bringing subjects to life and by making students active participants in the learning process.

Develop abilities such as self-discipline, focus, creative problem-solving, and interactive public presentation.

Reach schoolchildren with different learning styles and improve retention and graduation rates.

ARTS BRIDGE AMERICA

ArtsBridge America is a national network of arts education programs at 22 universities in 13 states.

Founded in 1996 at the University of California, Irvine, ArtsBridge provides high-quality arts instruction in a manner that allows students to explore their own creativity through hands-on experiences.

ArtsBridge creates university-school partnerships that offer university students and schoolteachers the opportunity to devise and implement lessons that integrate the arts into the traditional K-12 curricula in ways that address both specific classroom needs and state and national standards.

Under the guidance of a university faculty mentor, the scholar works with the host teacher to integrate arts instruction within the core curriculum, so that the arts reinforce and enhance lessons in language arts, mathematics, social studies, or science. This support can awaken an appreciation for the value of the arts in education.

“The most rewarding college experience I’ve had has been in an elementary school!”

- Elementary school scholar

“For our students, what I’ve seen ArtsBridge do is develop their language. They are much more aware of vocabulary and its meaning, and that relates back to their writing.”

- Elementary school principal
