Is the Middle East and North Africa unraveling as we know it? How is the nation-state challenged by political forces in the region? What does this mean for the people of the region and around the world?

This class will include a combination of lecture and discussion, along with various opportunities to look at the narratives that shape the region, specifically through media, film, music, and literature. It will also focus on the diversity of people who call this region home.