

Coyote as a baby Native American project

Coyote noticed that no fish were going up the river, so he turned himself into a baby and floated down river. He hit a dam and cried loud enough for nearby villagers would take him in. Every night Coyote would dig up the dam in hopes of one day breaking it. One villager was suspicious and looked for Coyote and noticed him digging and called upon his villager friends, but it was too late and Coyote broke it open. "The river will always flow!" Coyote said.